

Your Pharmacist,
Your Health,
Your Choice.

An accessible health professional

Your pharmacist plays a vital role in the health care system: pharmacists have extensive knowledge of more than 25,000 medications, interactions and side effects. What's more, your pharmacist is there for you during the course of your treatment, and can be consulted about prescription and over-the-counter drugs.

Thanks to your pharmacist, you have access to a range of professional services to help you manage your drug therapy and live better.

An active entrepreneur in your community

Pharmacists are also entrepreneurs that have competitors. Pursuant to the Canadian Competition Act, pharmacists can't fix prices together. Each pharmacist establishes his prices based on his operating costs and the services he provides.

Professional services have value

Your pharmacist does more than sell you medication. You are paying for the cost of the products as well as the professional services that go along with filling prescriptions, which play an important role in your health.

You are free to choose your pharmacist:
your health depends on it. No one has the right to influence your decision.
